SOUTH SUDAN CRISIS: Humanitarian Snapshot (as of 14 February 2014)

OVERVIEW

Since conflict broke out on mid-December 2013, close to 870,000 people have been forced from their homes, including 707,400 people displaced within South Sudan. Despite the cessation of hostilites agreement signed in late January, clashes and insecurity continue to constrain the humanitarian response. So far, over 302,000 people displaced have received assistance. Aid agencies aim to assist 3.2 million people affected by the crisis by June.

DISPLACEMENT

Displacement patterns are fluid, and aid agencies are stepping up efforts to track movements to improve analysis of needs.

Rising trend of people fleeing

OCHA 🚱

Creation date: 14 February 2014 Sources: OCHA, IOM, UNHCR, WFP and partners Feedback: imusouth@un.org, ochasouthsudan@un.org www.unocha.org/south-sudan www.reliefweb.int

The boundaries and names shown and the designations used on this map do not imply official endorsement or acceptance by the United Nations. ¹Final boundary between the Republic of South Sudan has not yet been determined. Final status of the Abyei area is not yet determined. ^{*}The total number of people displaced is likely higher, as aid agencies have very limited information about displacement outside main population centres. ^{}New arivals from South Sudan (not refugees) in Sudan has not been verified.